

3BL Peers Empowering cleantech leaders to grow their impact for better business and a brighter future

Cleantech Peer Advisory Councils

How should you lead a cleantech business in a complex and volatile world facing a climate and environmental crisis? Transformative leadership takes big thinking and the ability to navigate change while fueling steady growth.

3BL Peers are peer advisory councils for Chicago-area cleantech leaders ready to accelerate business success and maximize impact. We provide the support of a like-minded community of leaders and in a similar stage of company development. Members share a holistic mindset of leadership that aligns people, planet, and profit for better business and a brighter future.

Peer advisory councils help business leaders make better decisions through the opportunity to share ideas and enhance leadership skills -- essential in rapidly changing industries. Peer advisory councils are also a way to establish personal connections when it's lonely at the top. Peer groups aren't new—Ben Franklin started a Boston mastermind group in 1727—but our focus on cleantech and the triple bottom line is.
